Tara: an archaeological survey

by Conor Newman
This book gives the first complete report of Tara, the County Meath complex that is one of the most important archaeological sites in Ireland. It covers a combination of topographical, geophysical, aerial, geochemical and paper surveys. Fully illustrated with photographs and drawings, this book explains the significance of a site perhaps best known, from Celtic mythology, as the seat of the High Kings of Ireland. The book also proposes for the first time a model for the chronological development of its structures.
Archaeology Research Excavation Grant - Closing 26 Nov

Last chance to apply for ‘Archaeological Research Excavations’, closing Monday 26 November at 5pm

GRANTS AND AWARDS, ARCHAEOLOGY RESEARCH EXCAVATION GRANT
Irish Historic Towns Atlas collaborate with the Heritage Council and Dublin Festival of History

The collaboration between the Irish Historic Towns Atlas (IHTA) and the Heritage Council was celebrated this week with the launch of the IHTA Layer on HeritageMaps.ie and the Digital Atlas of Fethard as well as participating in the Dublin Festival of History.
Jacinta Prunty on the 'town in the nineteenth century'

To complement the Irish Historic Towns Atlas Online series we are producing short essays by experts on particular town types.

IRISH HISTORIC TOWNS ATLAS

You might also like

Excavations at Knowth Volume 6: The Passage Tomb...

Early Medieval Ireland, AD 400-1100

A History of Ireland in 100 Objects

Excavations at Knowth Volume 5: The archaeology...
He directed the Discovery Programme's Tara: Archaeological Survey Project before joining the Department of Archaeology, NUI, Galway, in 1996. Three times visiting professor of Celtic archaeology at the University of Toronto, he has studied at the Institute of Archaeology, Oxford, and at Edinburgh University. He was Vice-Dean for Research at the Arts faculty in 2007-08. A member of the Institute of Archaeologists of Ireland, he was editor of the Journal of Irish Archaeology from 2003-2008. He contributed to the Discovery Programme Reports 2 & 6 and is also the editor of Tara: An archaeological survey (1997). Related News & Events. Archaeology Research Excavation Grant - Closing 26 Nov. Tara - An Archaeological Survey gives the first complete survey of what is regarded as the most important archaeological site in Ireland covering a combination of topographical, geophysical, aerial, geochemical and paper surveys. Google Books Listing. Tara: An Archaeological Survey. Extract from the Introduction. The Hill of Tara lies about midway between the towns of Dunshaughlin and Navan in the gently rolling countryside of south central Meath. The monuments comprising the core of the Tara complex are scattered along a low ridge about 2km long, orientated roughly north—south, a little to th